NABANT QUOTE ON RAISING HIGH SCHOOL FUND

Mothers of High School children in Nahant—with the annual town meeting coming this Saturday—decide that their boys and girls be not obliged to go to Lynn High School, even if the high summer colony days which were kept down.

Article 23—Suggestive number—in the town warrant reads: "To see if the town will appropriate the sum of $15,000, for the purpose of purchasing land and erecting of a building, as recommended by the School Building Committee."

The grammar and high schools are crowded into one brick building. In another school is provided the high school pupils will have plenty of room. That is what the mothers would like to see, who prefer that their young sons and daughters go to school as near home as possible.

On the other hand, the "Warrent" Committee of the town, which is a sort of advisory board on major appropriations, says: "Let's send all the children to Lynn High School, even if we have to pay tuition, for we will save money in the end."

But imagine the feelings of Mrs. Bessie Lane Williams of No. 24 Valley road.

MOTHER IS INDIGNANT.
Mrs. Williams brought her six children six thousand miles, clear up from Brazil to Nahant to educate them and now finds that Nahant may discontinue its High School.

"I have no desire to try to dictate town affairs. I really am not posted on the financial side of this question. But I feel very keen about the educational side of it. My husband and I wished our children educated in Massachusetts. I attended Lynn High school in my childhood, but when I came to here I settled in Nahant because I liked this location. Now I find them talking about sending the high school pupils to Lynn."

Four of my six children are in the Nahant school. Three of them are girls. For one thing, I don't believe in the girls riding back and forth to Lynn every school day in the trolley. It takes time and it is not desirable at all for many reasons.

"It is simply a case of the nearest school to the home, the better for the children."

CALLS LYNN "GOOD PAIR"
Mrs. Kent Johnson of Ocean street, whose daughter, Florence, will be graduated from Nahant High School this summer, says:

"While I shall not be so immediately concerned with school matters after Florence is graduated, I think the children should go to high school in their own town. It is too far to send them to Lynn."

The high school question has been put to the three candidates for school committee, but the candidates themselves already declare that the matter is not up to them yet—not until the election.

As the new building matter will be decided on election day, the school committee candidates already the issue is nearly decided.

There is extra interest in the school committee contest this year on account of the entry of Mrs. Thomas P. Curtis of woman suffrage fame. The Curtis family have their Nahant home near Senator Lodge's place. Their town house on Beacon street, Boston, is let for the winter.

MRS. CURTIS NON-COMMITTAL.
There has not been a woman on the Nahant School Board for years. Mrs. Curtis thinks it is time there were again. But she is non-committal on the high school matter, saying:

"The school matter will be all settled before election."

An interesting point in connection with the school issue is that Mrs. Curtis has three children, two tutored by a governess. She desires to have them take Latin, but boys particularly, and she understands there is no Latin course in Nahant High School now. That's not literally true. Rather there is a Latin course, but no pupils following it. It is said that, if any pupil wishes to take Latin, he or she will be given instruction.

Arthur H. Robertson of Valley road, another candidate for school board, says: "Let the voters settle the high school question."

The third candidate for the board is C. J. Johnson, the present chairman of the board, who desires to see election. Mr. Johnson is said to favor a local high school.

The prospect for town meeting seems merry. The high school argument is nearly one of many. The school committee contest is another. Chairman Charles D. Vary of the Selectmen, who has been in office since "Fido was a pup," is retiring and several men are scrambling for the vacancy.

The license question is aizzling and altogether it looks as though a delightful time "would be had," as they say.

New England Has Lost Good Friend In David O. Ives

In the death of David O. Ives, head of the transportation department of the Chamber of Commerce, the people of New England have lost more than they know.

He was a brave, incorruptible man. The intelligent, experienced service as a railroad expert which he rendered this community helped Massachusetts wonderfully to resist the aggressiveness of a blighting railroad monopoly.

R. W. Pillsbury Is Out for Governor

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 19.—Roosevelt W. Pillsbury of London-derry today announced himself a Republican candidate for governor. He declares he believes he can lead the party to victory. He was a candidate for Governor in 1907 and 1910, being defeated in the latter attempt.

He is the first gubernatorial announcement.

Mackerel Trust War Expected Here

Over in New York they have discovered a mackerel trust in process of formation, and since T wharf and the waterfront today there was expected discussion of the new entry into the fish market. The proposed trust is a Scandinavian organization, a combination of the two largest exporting firms in Norway and Sweden. The concern is offering to handle the output of all Norwegian mackerel, which will bring a higher price and better pay to the fishermen. New York firms, however, are fighting the combine. The war was today expected to spread to Boston.
